OUR COLLECTION

We produce our own hospitality furniture collection in Indonesia, Vietnam and Italy which can be further tailor-made for projects. The collection is also showcased on architonic.com/set-collection

PRODUCTION

At set., we are committed to producing a furniture collection that combines traditional high skilled craftsmanship techniques, sourced from various cultures and countries around the world. Sustainability is at the heart of our production process not only by using materials and human labor with respect and empathy, but with a tender sense of the future in total, contributing towards a brighter footprint, as individuals and as a company.

We do this by purposefully choosing reclaimed teak wood, for many of our projects, from its original source in Indonesia, investing in century-old crafting techniques to deliver the final product. This allows us to support local artisans and keep our business practices aligned with our values. Through this upcycling process, new trees are not felled to make your piece.

At the same time, reclaimed teak presents a beautiful opportunity to honor the past and serves as a reminder of heritage and ancestry in a world where embracing slowness is an act of rebellion.

Expect an eclectic collection of interior, furniture and details, a proprietary blend of classic, vintage and modern products.

BRUTAL is a collection of outdoor furniture and accessories such as pots and fountains entirely made of fiberglass concrete, commonly known as GFRC.

Fiberglass is quite literally very minuscule glass fibers. Things like windows, roofing, boats and bathtubs are actually made with glass fiber-reinforced plastic (i.e. glass fibers in a polymer mix). However, use concrete and sand instead of plastic, and you've got glass fiber-reinforced concrete (GFRC). That is how things are done at set's cutting-edge workshop in Vietnam.

Our tight-knit experienced carpenters handcraft indoor and outdoor furniture for homes and hospitality settings. Fiber-reinforced concrete furniture achieves a sleek and sophisticated aesthetic while also being extremely durable.

What are the benefits of glass fiber-reinforced concrete?

- + Strength: GFRC can have up to 4000psi flexural strength, which is considered an extremely high strength-to-weight ratio.
- + Toughness: GFRC is highly resistant to cracks and shatters, and it's easy to cut without chipping occurring.
- + Durability: GFRC is far more durable than precast concrete, cast, stone and even some varieties of natural stone. Water can't find its way into GFRC surfaces and there are no cracks in the material.
- + Surface: Because the surface of the material is applied by spray, once it sets there are no voids, gaps or bug holes in the surface finish.
- + Sustainability: GFRC is a more sustainable material since less cement is required than other methods and commonly incorporates recycled materials into the composition.

SLOW RECLAIMED is a family of furniture handmade, by and large, of noble reclaimed teak in Indonesia.

The collection is further complemented by handpicked accessories crafted from bamboo and reclaimed iron. Accessories such as lamps and shades fuse lightly with the quirky teak pieces.

Both in Indonesia and in the furniture manufacturing industry worldwide, reclaimed teak wood is considered one of the most valuable and durable materials of choice. We take our furniture production straight to the source, working with expertly skilled Indonesian artists and investing in their years of ancient crafting techniques to deliver an unparalleled result.

A native of Southeast Asia, Tectona Grandis, or «teak» for short, was once used for shipbuilding due to its magnificent water-resistant qualities and longevity. Harnessed under brutal heat and humidity, catastrophic rainstorms and intense moisture, teak was made to adapt, thrive and retain its color, beauty and functionality. As the primary material of the collection, it is salvaged from old buildings, bridges and other structures during demolition.

Contrary to teak wood sourced from new trees, reclaimed teak lumber has already proven its durability and decay resistance. This is a rare phenomenon nowadays when most teak lumber is planted and grown specifically for the purpose of the furniture. Through this upcycling process, new trees are not felled to make your peace. At the same time, reclaimed teak presents a beautiful opportunity to honor the past and serves as a reminder of heritage and ancestry in a world where embracing slowness is an act of rebellion.

When you choose reclaimed teak furniture, you're also choosing to protect teak forests, contribute to local communities and maintain a piece of history by giving it new life.

Navarino Residences Messinia

The design concept is driven by the dialectic relationships forming the triptych of nature, memory and form. At the core of this project's approach lies the olive tree as a compositional center of gravity, while its enveloping volumes – which allure to these of a traditional olive press factory – set an earthy scene. Solids and voids frame the sacred tree in diverse ways, accentuating the building's spatial experience. Stone, mud and wood are intertwined in a powerful narrative sequence and follow a distinct formal articulation, pushing the boundaries of traditional craftsmanship. The building's formal structure aims to create varied spaces – whether open-air or interior ones, oriented towards a view or introvert ones, formal or intimate – that underline the project's diverse spatial qualities.

SLOW is a family of handmade, nature-inspired furniture purposefully crafted from sustainable materials such as teak, bamboo, cane, rope and iron for category-defining interiors.

Drawing on the insights of the slow movement and the wabi-sabi aesthetics, with SLOW collection we aim to design and build products that pay tribute to century-old traditions of craftsmanship while we contribute towards a brighter footprint as individuals and as hospitality furniture experts.

SLOW in fact is a literal and figurative name as it's an acronym for sustainable, local, organic and wise, and advocates for a more considered, purposeful approach to the interior design and furniture industry.

Wabi-sabi, on the other hand, is a world view centered on the acceptance of transience and imperfection. The aesthetic is sometimes described as an appreciating beauty that is «imperfect, impermanent and incomplete» in nature.

Characteristics of wabi-sabi aesthetics and principles like asymmetry, roughness, simplicity, economy, austerity, modesty, intimacy and the appreciation of both natural materials and the forces of nature are subtle qualities that can be found throughout the SLOW family.

MALAWI collection of furniture and accessories. Beautiful handmade products with just a little bit more meaning.

Malawi's artisans have a centuries-old craft tradition using natural resources and generations of indigenous knowledge. Unfortunately, these time-honored cultural traditions, embedded in craftsmanship, are in danger of being lost and artisans are too often underserved as part of the informal economy.

Set. through a partnership with local laboratories is committed to reviving these techniques combining design, business innovation and a shift in consumer perception surrounding the value of handcrafting. We have developed a Circular Value Chain, generating social and economic opportunities for artisans at the bottom of the supply chain, while providing the market with highly desired home decor and furniture.

We help low-income artisans build sustainable businesses, which will raise their income and standard of living. In turn, this will preserve their cultural heritage and ensure indigenous skills survive for the next generation. At the same time, we aim to provide you with the most beautiful products and put a smile on your face!

KANSO is a furniture range handcrafted with sustainable natural materials, in characteristic Japandi (Scandinavian and Japanese) style or else minimal simplicity. As literally the word Kanso means in Japanese, simplicity, the use of humble, basic yet strong materials such as rattan, bamboo, teak and iron are prevalent and the KANSO collection can be used in indoor or outdoor home or hotel settings.

CLASSICS: if there's one style that's an absolutely constant in interior design trends, it's Mid-century Modern.

Sure, it might take on a slightly different look from season to season, sometimes it's truer to its 1940s roots and has a real retro feel, sometimes it's more in line with the minimalist Scandi aesthetic. But our love of tapered legs, low-slung silhouettes and the sleek, less-is-more approach is going nowhere.

The staying power of this style says a lot about how adaptable it is. It's been on trend for over 80 years, with resurges coming every decade or so, and we see it used repeatedly by designers the world over.

So to pay homage to this ever-in-favor style, we've put together CLASSICS Collection, one that favours essentialism and can be passed down as heritage to the generations to come.
